2016 - 2017

“The Euro-Mediterranean Network for Economic Studies (EMNES) is built on four core principles: independence, excellence, policy relevance and deep knowledge on Euro-Mediterranean affairs. The results expected from our action are to allow younger generation of researchers, yet experts in their fields, to provide policy makers with a renewed vision for socio-economic development in the south Mediterranean countries, mainly focusing on employment creation, social inclusion, and sustainable development.”

About EMNES

The Euro-Mediterranean Network for Economic Studies (EMNES) is a network of partners and associates research institutions and think tanks working on socio-economics in the Euro-Mediterranean. EMNES builds on the research work of Euro-Mediterranean Economists Association and the Mediterranean Prospects Network.

EMNES will produce books, studies, scientific and policy papers and will disseminate through the organization of annual conferences, and workshop meetings in the region bringing together leading senior and junior researchers, academics, policy makers and representatives of the civil society to discuss and debate optimal policies for the future of the region. EMNES is co-funded by the European Commission – under Grant Contract N° ENPI/2014/354-488 and the EMNES Partners and Associates.

EMNES RESEARCH ACTIVITIES

What we do

EMNES research agenda is organized around the following seven mutually reinforcing and interconnected themes led by EMNES researchers:

- Institutions and institutional reforms and their sequencing required to improve economic and political governance;
- Private sector, micro, small and medium –sized enterprises development, entrepreneurship and social business;
- Human capital development, education, innovation, skill mismatch and migration;
- Macroeconomic policies and employment creation;
- Labor markets, employment and employability;
- Finance and the real economy; and
- Economic integration and inclusive economic liberalization policies.

EMNES research program is implemented in three stages:

- The first stage – qualitative descriptive research – strive to explore and assess the socio-economic inter-linkages of the drivers of the innovative, sustainable and inclusive development and growth models in the Mediterranean region and macro and micro levels of complementarities and synergies with the EU and other regions;
- The second stage – analytical research – is to test and develop, via theoretical and empirical scientific research, innovative thinking about new socio-economic development and growth models that are participative, inclusive, sustainable, sound and long-term employment generating;
- The third stage –policy-oriented research – is to provide policy recommendations and design full-fledged roadmaps to be shared with the policy makers under the Euro-Mediterranean partnership.

EMNES will ultimately contribute to the general objective of reinforcing dialogue and promoting socio-economic research and studies in priority themes of the Euro-Mediterranean Partnership, particularly focusing on employment creation and social inclusion, especially among the youth. It is also designed to ensure the dissemination of the results of these studies and research to civil society and socio-economic policy makers.

YOUTH EMPLOYMENT AND REGIONAL INTEGRATION IN THE EURO-MEDITERRANEAN REGION

QUALITATIVE AND QUANTITATIVE ECONOMIC ANALYSIS
ON WHETHER AND HOW REGIONAL INTEGRATION
COULD LEAD TO YOUTH EMPLOYMENT

FINAL STUDY - 09 JULY 2017

Youth employment and regional integration in the Euro-Mediterranean region - Qualitative and quantitative economic analysis on whether and how regional integration could lead to youth employment

Authors: Rym Ayadi, Fragkiadakis Kostas, Leonidas Paroussos, Karkatsoulis Panagiotis, Raul Ramos, Carlo Sessa, Emanuele Sessa – 20.07.2017

The overall objective of this study is to examine how regional integration can provide both short-term and long-term solutions to the employment crisis in the Euro-Mediterranean region. The study targets both increased employment creation for and improved employability of youngsters in Southern and Northern Mediterranean countries, facing persistently high and increasingly unsustainable youth unemployment rates. The analysis conducted explores the conditions under which regional integration would contribute to enhance employment creation besides sustaining output growth, which is a precondition for the expansion of employment opportunities, yet not systematically translating into higher levels of employment.

INSTITUTIONS AND LABOUR MARKETS IN THE SOUTHERN MEDITERRANEAN COUNTRIES

A SURVEY OF EGYPT, JORDAN, MOROCCO & TUNISIA

Institutions and labour markets in the Southern Mediterranean countries – A survey of Egypt, Jordan, Morocco & Tunisia

Authors: Ahmed Badawi and Cilja Harders – 23.10.17

The study provides a survey of the institutional environment in which labour markets in Egypt, Jordan, Morocco and Tunisia are embedded. The paper presents an overview of the main recent demographic and employment trends. It then provides a comprehensive analysis of those sections in the constitutions of the four countries and of the various labour laws and regulations that are relevant for employment and social justice. In addition, the paper explores the role of informal institutions and practical norms in shaping the behaviour of employers and employees, and highlights the problem of the weak capacity of the state to enforce labour market rules.

The Southern Mediterranean region is economically closely linked to the EU. Both regions have sought to tighten this relationship via preferential trade agreements. Along four case countries, namely Egypt, Jordan, Morocco and Tunisia, this study provides an overview of the current state and trend of trade flows vis-à-vis the EU. The four country reports evaluate the process of trade liberalization and its impact on trade with the EU and the rest of the world. Recently, liberalisation efforts have been channeled into the Deep and Comprehensive Free Trade Agreements (DCFTAs), which focus on non-tariff barriers and investment obstacles. The study emphasises that while impact assessment reports predict large economic gains for the Southern Mediterranean region from DCFTAs, negotiation have lately slowed down. The DCFTAs may have a large potential but the right sequencing and velocity need to be carefully established and prepared to ensure that the society at large benefits.

Abstract: This study strives to provide a comprehensive overview on the micro, small and medium sized enterprises (MSMEs) sector in the selected South and East Mediterranean Countries (SEMCs) mainly Egypt, Jordan, Morocco and Tunisia. In particular, it examines the structure and the economic contribution of the MSMEs sector, discusses the obstacles to MSMEs growth and job creation and provides an overview of the policies and actors aimed to promote their development. This study aims at preparing the ground for a more insightful and targeted research agenda and better policies in support of MSMEs in the selected countries and to guide the European Union and other international actors to target their contributions to this sector.

YOUTH EMPLOYMENT IN THE MEDITERRANEAN REGION: IS FURTHER REGIONAL INTEGRATION THE WAY FORWARD FOR JOB CREATION?

Rym Ayadi and Raul Ramos
October, 2017

Regional integration in the Euro-Mediterranean

Authors: Rym Ayadi and Raul Ramos – 16.10.17

The employment and social impact of the global financial and sovereign European crises has been particularly severe in the Euro-Mediterranean region. Southern, Eastern and Northern Mediterranean countries have all been experiencing a prolonged employment crisis, whereas the improving employment trend in Northern European countries and related attractiveness for unemployed individuals across the region underpins unprecedented migratory pressures. This policy paper first delves into the challenge of youth unemployment in the Mediterranean region, explains the underlying reasons from a labour supply and demand and provides recommendations on how further regional integration can tackle this challenge.

WORKING PAPER

REGIONAL INTEGRATION IN THE EURO-MEDITERRANEAN

Key Dimensions, Status Quo and Prospects Towards Fundamental Rethinking

Rym Ayadi and Emanuele Sessa
EMNES Working Paper N° 1 / June 2017

Abstract

The latest developments on both shores of the Mediterranean Sea are unequivocal evidence that the Euro-Mediterranean Partnership failed to deliver on the promise of achieving shared prosperity through enhanced political association and economic integration. This very fact calls for a thorough assessment and fundamental rethinking of cooperation frameworks and integration schemes in the Euro-Mediterranean region. In this paper, academic literature on core dimensions of regional integration, the history of regional integration schemes and the current status quo in economic integration are each discussed, to shed light on the determinants of the very limited or non-existent catch-up between poorer and richer countries throughout the Euro-Mediterranean region. The importance of rethinking cooperation frameworks and integration schemes to accommodate the emergence of regional value chains is highlighted, based on the above assessment and the latest developments in research about globalisation.

Keywords: Euro-Mediterranean partnership, economic integration, trade policy, regional value chains.

Conferences & activities

EMNES 1st Annual Conference, December 2016, Tunis

Towards inclusive, sustainable and employment driven socio-economic models in the Mediterranean: What roles for institutions, micro-small and medium sized enterprises and finance?

In the first EMNES Annual Conference, the participants discussed the preliminary outputs of research conducted during the first year of project implementation in three main areas of investigation. These areas cover the role and current and future development of institutions, private sector development with a particular focus on micro-, small- and medium-sized enterprises (MSMES) and finance in achieving an inclusive and sustainable model of socio-economic development, centred on employment creation and employability of the youth.
